No. 1679.
Citation by Publication.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT (Mattie Calk of MEDINA COUNTY, 38th vs. JUDICIAL DIST. OF TEXAS) J. C. Calk, THE STATE OF TEXAS,

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Medina County—GREETING:

You Are Hereby Commanded, that by making Publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Medina, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 38th judicial district; but if there be no newspaper published in said judicial district, then in a newspaper published in the nearest district to said 38th judicial district, for four weeks previous to the return day hereof, you summon J. C. Calk, whose residence is unknown, to be and appear before the Hon. District Court, at the next regular term thereof, to be held in the County of Medina at the court house thereof, in Hondo, Texas, on the 8th Monday after the 1st Monday in September, 1912, the same being the 28th day of October, 1912, then and there to answer a Petition filed in said Court on the 2nd day of March, A. D. 1912, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 1679, wherein Mattie Calk is plaintiff and said J. C. Calk is defendant. The nature of the plaintiff's demand being as follows, to-wit: That she is a bona-fide resident of the State of Texas and has resided in Medina County for at least six months next preceding the filing of this suit, and defendant's residence is unknown. That plaintiff and defendant were legally married on or about the 14th day of March, A. D. 1910, in Devine, Medina County, Texas, and that said marriage relations still exist. That they continued to live together as husband and wife until on or about the 17th day of March, 1910. That plaintiff during the time she lived and cohabited with defendant conducted herself with propriety and at all times treated her husband, the defendant, with kindness and forbearance, but that defendant, disregarding the solemnity of his marriage vow and his obligation to treat plaintiff with kindness and attention, within one day after his marriage to plaintiff commenced a course of unkind, harsh and tyrannical conduct toward her which continued until he left and separated from plaintiff on or about March 17, 1910. That on divers occasions while plaintiff lived with him defendant addressed to her the most opprobrious epithets and threats of personal violence and repeatedly threatened to take her life.

Plaintiff alleges that defendant's actions and conduct toward her are of such a nature as to render their future living together as husband and wife insupportable.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays the Court that defendant be cited, by publication, to appear and answer herein and for judgment dissolving said marriage relations, for costs of suit and for such other and further relief, special and general, in law and equity, that she may be justly entitled to.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, and have you before said Court, on the said first day of the next term thereof, this Writ, with your endorsement thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Hondo, Texas, this, the 4th day of September, A. D. 1912. Issued same day.

will make country life more desirable than urban life. Progress in agricultural methods and more of the conveniences of life in the country will keep the people on the farm and do more to solve the problem of the high cost of living than any direct legislation on the subject can possibly accomplish.—Lockhart Register.

THE Anvil Herald has preached in season and out of season the importance of having Hondo High school affiliated with the higher institutions of learning in the state so that pupils going from our school to these higher institutions would experience no greater break in their course of study by such a step than the child experiences in going from one grade to another in the school. Besides being of inestimable value to those so fortunate as to be able to go on in the completion of their education at these higher institutions, it would make for thoroughness in our school, thereby meaning the best training possible for those whose schooling must cease with the completion of the High School course. It is, therefore, a source of no small pleasure to the Anvil Herald to be able to announce that the Mothers of Hondo have awoken to the advantages as well as the possibility of such affiliation and have set themselves to the laudable task of removing the last barrier that remains in the way—the lack of sufficient apparatus in the school. The Mothers Club is circulating a subscription list to secure sufficient funds to purchase such apparatus as is essential to so complete and round out the High School course as to make our school eligible for affiliation. What the Club fails to secure by subscription it proposes to borrow on its own account so that the purchase of the needed supplies will not be delayed. This last resort ought not to be and it will not if all who should have the interest of the school at heart will do what they can in the way of a subscription. Do your duty by your school and let Hondo have a school that means all a school can give to those who are to be its pupils.

During the electrical storm last Friday night, lightning is supposed to have struck the brick building, formerly occupied by the electric light plant, at the Hondo Gin & Milling Co. plant and set fire to its contents, a lot of mixed feed, hay, etc., that was stored therein.

Members of the family discovered the fire about four o'clock Saturday morning, while the storm was on, and an alarm was turned in. The Hondo Volunteer Fire Co. and numerous citizens responded and after much labor extinguished the flames after about $150 damage had been done to the building and contents. The fire was in a quantity of unbaled hay and was difficult to get to. But for the fact that it was in an almost air-tight brick building the building and all its contents would probably have been destroyed.

As a mark of appreciation for the services of the Hondo Volunteer Fire Co. in saving his property Mr. Muenning presented the company with $25.00 which will be spent for needed supplies and for which he has the thanks of the company.

J. W. Cruseturner Dead.

The town was shocked early Saturday morning as the news spread that Mr. J. W. Cruseturner had been struck by lightning and instantly killed at his home in the northeast part of town during the progress of the electrical storm that visited our town about four o'clock that morning.

Mr. Cruseturner had been sleeping on the gallery of his house. Upon the approach of the storm he moved his bedding into the house and stepped back on the gallery to get a drink of water at the hydrant. He did not return, and upon his failure to answer his wife's calls she went to look for him. She found him lying dead underneath the hydrant where he had fallen, struck dead by a bolt of lightning while evidently in the act of drinking. The bolt had struck him about the head and shoulders, producing instant death. The bolt set fire to his clothing and scorched him about the neck and breast, but the water pouring from the hydrant extinguished the fire.

Medical aid was summoned but to no avail, and after an inquest by Justice of the Peace A. M. Lamm, the body was prepared for burial and shipped to his former home at Martindale Saturday evening for interment. The remains were accompanied by the family and an escort from the local lodge of Woomen of the World of which order deceased was a member. The remains were laid to rest Sunday and the bereaved family returned to their home here Tuesday morning.

The deceased was a well-to-do farmer, about forty-four years old. He had resided here five or six years, having moved here from Martindale. He leaves a widow and four children, three boys and a girl, to mourn his sad and untimely death.

The same bolt of lightning that killed Mr. Cruseturner ignited the house where it struck, but the fire was extinguished before it made any headway.

The Anvil Herald joins in the general sympathy for the bereaved ones.

Mothers' Club Meeting.

The Mothers' Club met at the high school building Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

President Hudspeth called the house to order.

The secretary having left the city, a secretary pro tem was appointed.

Ten members were present and six new members were enrolled.

The assessment of $1.00 per member was discussed and a motion carried to discard all dues except the ten cents per member to be paid the National Congress of Mothers.

Supt. Harris urged the need of apparatus for the school looking forward to affiliation with the University and also to the prospect of having a Summer Normal at Hondo.

Mesdames Hudspeth and Monkhouse were asked to solicit funds for the apparatus.

Mrs. L. J. Brucks was elected recording secretary.

Supt. Harris will arrange to entertain the Club at the next meeting as the Year Books have not been printed.

Paint?

There are two good reasons for painting often enough or even too often. One, to look prosperous; two to be so.

Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it; and paint costs nothing.

True, the first cost is $5 or $6 a gallon put-on; but it saves more than that in the property; saves it from slow going down—not always slow—it drops with a jump when water gets in on wood and iron.

Dry wood and iron cost nothing, kept dry by paint.

Better paint when it needs it. Paint never goes down in the sense of being more profitable next year.

Whimsical Fate

How It Blocked One Man's Career and Advanced Another's

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

One morning Colonel Gustave Garnier of the French—th curassiers having been invited to breakfast with his brigade commander, General Maréchal, at his headquarters near Paris, the two sat down together in the general's breakfast room.

"I am sorry, colonel," said the general, "that I can give you nothing heartier than eggs. My cook tells me there has been an error in supplying the harder."

Colonel Garnier failed to repress a look of disappointment, or, rather, repulsion.

"You do not eat eggs?" asked the general.

"No, general, I do not. But I see quite enough else on your table upon which to make an excellent breakfast."

They had finished their repast, laved their fingers and lips and wiped them

"THAT ONE IS BAD," I SAID.

with their napkins when, lighting a cigarette, Colonel Garnier asked:

"Would you like to know why I do not eat eggs, general?"

"I would," replied the general, looking at his subordinate curiously.

"There is a story connected with my distaste for them. When I was young I was extremely fond of eggs. I was very particular as to the time an egg should be boiled. Three and a half minutes was the interval I required between putting the egg into boiling water and taking it out."

"Well, when I was graduated from the military school I was picked out by my classmates as one of our number who would surely make his mark. It was predicted that at thirty-five I would surely be a general of division and at forty would command a corps d'armée."

The colonel paused, took a few puffs at his cigarette and said in a melanchole tone:

"I am fifty and still a colonel."

"Nevertheless a fine officer," remarked the general sympathetically.

The Franco-Prussian war came on immediately after my graduation. My division was on detached service in an exposed position between the French and Prussian armies. One morning when I was in command of a picket post a strapping girl dressed in the French peasant costume of jaunty cap, short skirt and sabots approached me. On her arm she carried a basket containing butter, cheese and eggs. She said in excellent French—too good French for a peasant—that she lived on a farm within our lines and wished to sell us her produce.

The eggs tempted me. I agreed to buy half a dozen—all I could take care of while on duty—taking them out of the basket and holding them up to the light, which I always did before using eggs to test them. The girl held one end of the basket toward me, from which I took the eggs, but on coming to the fifth I reached for one at the other end. Looking through it I could see no light.

"That one is bad," I said, putting it back in its place.

"Monsieur should take those at the other end of the basket. They are for my officers. These are for the men. You will find that one very fresh," handing me an egg.

"That one will do." The girl walked away. I looked at her as she receded. It seemed to me that her gait was peculiar. At any rate, I never saw a woman with stride like that. But many of the peasant women in France, as you know, generally do so much field work that except for their petticoats they may well be taken for men.

I had a friend on the staff, Lieutenant Antoine Ducat, who rode up to my tent that evening while I was cooking the eggs. I invited him to sup with me, and he accepted. At headquarters they had not been able to secure fresh supplies, and Ducat enjoyed the eggs so well that when he returned to the general he told of the feast of which he had partaken. Then came an orderly to ask where I had procured the eggs. I told of the girl who had sold them to me, and the general sent his aids, his orderlies and his escort flying all over the limited region we occupied with orders to find the farm and the girl. Each and every one returned with the information that there was no dairy farm within the picket lines and the girl could not be found.

"I received a summons to report in person at headquarters, and the general questioned me and cross questioned me, making me very uncomfortable. He even got out of me the fact that I had tried to look through one of the eggs and found only darkness.

"Was it the same weight as the others?" asked the general.

"I could detect no difference."

"Are you sure the girl was not a man in girl's clothes?"

"I remembered her walk and hesitated."

"Come, out with it. You suspect that she was?"

"She had a man's stride."

"That will do. By your stupidity you have permitted a spy to pass through our lines and become acquainted with our weakness. Besides, there are small bodies of Prussians on every side of us. If we had not them so separated that they can't communicate, by a concerted movement they could crush us."

"But, general," I protested, "the people hereabout are all French and loyal. This girl spoke excellent French."

"Peasants do not speak excellent French," he replied impatiently. "That will do; you may go."

"I had hardly left his headquarters before a flag of truce was announced without the picket line for admission. Its commandant was taken to the general and presented a demand for our capitulation. He told our general just what forces were in our vicinity and that they had every road by which we might escape occupied. By concerted action, which had been agreed upon, they could capture us."

"Our general declined to surrender, and at midnight we made a dash for escape. Nearly half of our number were killed or wounded. I tried my best to get shot, for I felt sure I had by my stupidity permitted a spy to walk from one Prussian force straight through our lines to another bearing a communication and the news of our weakness. But though I exposed myself while the fighting was most desperate I was not even scratched."

"The remnant of our force surrendered, and the next morning, having stacked our arms, we were marched before the Prussian generals who had combined for our destruction. An aid on the staff of one of them, coming up to me with a leer on his face, said in the same excellent French the peasant girl had used:

"Hello, comrade. What's the price of eggs today?"

"Ah!" I replied, "you are the peasant girl who sold me those eggs. Was there a message in the one I tried to look through?"

"Indeed there was, and your getting hold of it, I feared, would undo me. Had you held on to that egg you would not now have been here and I would have swung at the end of a rope."

"It weighed the same as the others."

"Sand did that."

"Where did you learn French?"

"At a Parisian school."

"We were marching during this brief dialogue, and at this point the man dropped away from me."

"To make matters worse I received an offer from the Prussians of an immediate exchange as a recognition of the service I had done them. I replied that the only exchange I would accept would be from earth to paradise."

The colonel paused, and his chin sank on his breast. Presently he concluded:

"From that day, general, I have been a snubbed man in the army. Whenever a time for my promotion came round some excuse was found for putting another in my place. Unfortunately, since then, France has been at peace, and I have had no opportunity to redeem my stupidity or get myself killed."

"Rather call it misfortune," interrupted the general.

"No; it was stupidity. At any rate, I shall never forgive myself any more than France will forgive me for failing to see light through an egg without cracking it. My failure in the army was my own fault."

"Since that episode I have always had a repulsion for an egg. I have never eaten one from that day to this, and the sight of eggs is painful to me. I have disliked to give you the reason why I will not eat them at your table, but have done so that you may excuse my impoliteness in not partaking of what you have provided for me."

"Colonel," said the general after passing some moments in thought, "what you call stupidity is fate. I, a much younger man than you, was the butt of my class at St. Cyr. Now I am a general officer, while you, an honor man, are still a colonel. And why?" Fate threw an obstacle in your way; fate gave me a push. When I was a Lieutenant Mme. le Mareschal, on the staff of whose husband I served, while on the march lost her handbag.

All of us aids spurred out in different directions to find the little beast—I was the lucky man. I brought it back and received for it in return a recommendation for immediate promotion. So long as Mme. le Mareschal is in the army I shall be advanced. I have just received notice of my promotion to be Lieutenant general."

TEXAS NEEDS GREAT MEN

XXI. QUARRELS

THE neigh of a horse made Darius King of Persia, the six contending powers for the throne agreeing among themselves that the one whose horse should neigh first should possess the kingdom. This ancient method of settling disputes among politicians could be revived with profit in Texas today. If our partisan factions and petty politicians could only settle their disputes by the neigh of a horse, the bark of a dog or the bray of a donkey, it would be a great blessing for Texas and would give our citizens a better opportunity to pursue the vocations of industry free from political strife.

DARIUS MADE KING OF PERSIA.

Let those who pick political plums by raising rows and who flash swords dripping in the blood of industry understand that they cannot turn the public forum into a political arena and by a clash of personal aspirations still the hammer and stop the plow and that their quarrels must be settled in the back alleys of civilization. Texas Needs Great Men.

AGAINST STATEWIDE

LOUISVILLE MINISTER GOES ON RECORD AGAINST STATUTORY PROHIBITION.

Says Laws Can Not Make Men Temperate and Believes in Local Option.

Louisville, Ky.—Dr. E. L. Powell, for twenty years one of the most brilliant ministers in a local pastorate, and a leader in the cause of good government, has gone on record against the principles of prohibitory laws.

In a recent communication to the Louisville Courier-Journal, Dr. Powell says: "Prohibition differentiates culture through restraint as contradistinguished from culture through liberty. From this standpoint the argument is still against prohibition. Statutory enactment is powerless to make a man love righteousness. It was because the law was a failure, both as prohibitive and injunctive, that the Gospel was given unto man, emphasizing the great truth that outward conformity to statutory provisions can make character, but only love of the right or obedience to the law because of an educated moralistic preference for the right.

Opposes State-wide.

"I am opposed to state-wide prohibition because legal prohibition does not and can not change the existing and confessedly recognized evils of the liquor traffic. The best that law can do in the realm of moral conduct is to regulate. No prohibitory statute of any kind prohibits. The regulation of the liquor traffic by means of high license, and local option, is the very best that law can do at this time. At one time I was a member of the Anti-Saloon league board of the state, and, although no longer a member of the board, I am just as honestly and sincerely a temperance man, but I have not believed, and do not believe, that the evils of the liquor traffic will ever be eradicated by way of prohibition."

YOUNG MEN TO VOTE.

Governor Believes They Will Kill Prohibition Law.

Augusta, Me.—Gov. Plaisted, of Maine, in a recent interview, declared that nine-tenths of the young men of Maine will vote at the coming election to have the prohibition amendment taken out of the constitution of that state. "The young men of Maine want something else to think of except the rum question," said the governor. "Maine is a state of great and magnificent undeveloped resources, and the time is at hand when the young men of the state are going to develop these resources, but first they desire to get this hypocrisy of the organic law of Maine out of the way. Maine, I believe, is entering upon a new era. We want to be rid of this eternal liquor question, and I feel that the time is now at hand when the voters of Maine will see that it is settled once for all by having it taken from the constitution, for they are tired of trifling with the subject. Personally, I do not favor county option. That would still mean too unwieldy a subject to handle. I prefer the town option plan. Under this latter system the people of Maine would really have self-government and the people could then deal with the problem as it seemed the most desirable in their own localities. When these things come to pass Maine will cease to be a state which is ridiculed because she has laws which are openly violated every day in the year."

STATE TO VOTE.

West Virginia to Decide on Prohibition Amendment to Constitution.

Charleston, W. Va.—West Virginia is one of the states which will vote soon on state-wide prohibition. An amendment to the constitution to permit the submission of the question to the voters was passed by the last general assembly. The vote will be cast on the proposed prohibition amendment at the general election in 1912. The last election on state-wide prohibition in West Virginia was held 24 years ago, and a prohibition amendment was rejected by a majority of 40,000.

The recent election in Texas, resulting in that state rejecting a prohibition amendment; the return to licensed saloons in Alabama and the action of many "dry" counties in West Virginia in repudiating county option, has resulted in a strong sentiment against the amendment throughout the state. The prohibition leaders, however, have started their campaign by the organization of clubs in the interior counties. They are making efforts to align themselves with one of the two big political parties, but so far both Democrats and Republicans have regarded the issue as a two-edge sword.

REVEREND O. HOENICKER'S VIEWS OF PROHIBITION.

Rev. O. Hoenicker, of Saginaw, Mich., in an address before the Michigan synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church on "Prohibition Viewed in the Light of the Holy Scriptures," said: "Correctly speaking, prohibition is nothing but a new attack upon the freedom of a Christian, inasmuch as through it a yoke is laid upon his neck, similar to the one from which he has been freed, and from which the Christian is in danger of losing his whole liberty."

TO BE GRACEFUL HURDLERS

Not An Easy Accomplishment and Worth Boys' While to Practice Feat Carefully.

It is the great ambition of most boy athletes to be graceful and successful hurdlers. Hurdling is not an easy accomplishment and it is worth every boy's while to practice it carefully in order to perform this feat to advantage.

In taking the barrier, the great hurdlers of the present day use the straight leg in front and let the rear leg hang, but at such a height that it will clear the obstacle. Greater effort is used in clearing the high hurdle, which is three feet six inches high. The lower is two feet six inches. On rising from the ground to clear the stick, great attention should be paid to the position of the body and arms, for on landing everything wants to be in readiness for the dash to the next hurdle.

Some athletes use the left foot, while others use the right. In hurding as in sprinting and high jumping things should also be done naturally.

The hurdles events, 120 yards high and 220 yards low, are essentially sprints. All the best hurdlers have been fast sprinters. To cover any distance in the hurdle races, whether high or low, the greatest agility is needed.

Thus all hurdlers should make sprinting an important part of their training, for otherwise they will not attain their highest speed over the sticks. The hurdlers should practice starting just as assiduously as the sprinter.

Although the hurdlers must be a fast sprinter, to make a successful hurdlers, he must, of course, have good form over the sticks, or he will not be able to bring his speed into play and he will perform disappointingly.

marked with a number. Through the center is a stick, shaped to suit your taste, only it must be pointed at the bottom, so that it can spin. A good game is to shoot marbles at the tee-to-tum while the thing is in motion. To form a pool, each player puts in about five marbles. The object of the game is to shoot a marble at the spinning tee-to-tum and try to strike it, turn it over and cause it to stop. If this is accomplished, the player gets as many marbles out of the pool as are indicated on the side that falls uppermost.

A Boy's Essay on Breath.

Prof. Emil Otto, the German educator, read at a dinner in Milwaukee an essay on "Breath" that a Milwaukee school teacher had given him as a curiosity. This essay, the work of a boy of nine, ran as follows:

"Breath is made of air. We breathe with our lungs, our lights, our livers, and our kidneys. If it wasn't for breath we would die when we slept. Our breath keeps the life a-going through the nose, when we are asleep. Boys that stay in a room all day should not breathe. They should wait till they get out of doors. Boys in a room make carbonic acid. Carbonic acid is the most poisonous of living things, dead or alive."—The American Boy.

New Fountain Notes.

BY NARRATOR.

ED ANVIL HERALD:

It is seldom that a couple with all of their children living have the pleasure to celebrate their golden wedding. Though, such an event took place in our burg last Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Derrick Gerdes, surrounded by all of their children and most of their grandchildren, celebrated their fifty-first anniversary.

The affair was a surprise to the venerable couple, planned by their children, as they had not thought of celebrating their golden wedding.

It was while the aged couple were attending church that (Sunday) morning that the children assembled at their home with everything in readiness for a grand feast. The old couple were very much surprised when they arrived home to find all of their children there to greet them upon this auspicious occasion.

Mr. Gerdes and wife (nee Theresa Willmann) were married at Cibolo valley, September 22, 1861, and shortly thereafter moved to New Fountain where they have since resided. Mr. and Mrs. Gerdes' union was blessed with nine children, six girls and three boys, all of whom are living and were together upon this auspicious occasion.

The children are: Mesdames August Barth, M. L. Saathoff, John Buss, F. W. Erick, J. S. Saathoff and A. J. Hoffmann and Messrs. Willie, August and Louis A. Gerdes. All of the children reside in Medina county except Mrs. Hoffmann, who resides in Guadalupe county.

The day was most agreeably spent by all and the honorees were especially delighted with the affair.

The old couple are Hale and hearty and are enjoying splendid health with prospects of living to celebrate their diamond wedding.

The young people of this vicinity enjoyed a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buss last Friday night.

J. G. Karm and family paid a visit to Chas. Senne and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bless returned to their Kinney county home after a two weeks' visit to relatives here.

Hy Buss returned Sunday evening from San Antonio where he had been to visit his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stiegler and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stiegler, Mrs. Amanda Musminck and children and Roland Burge took in the sights at Mico Monday and returned well pleased with their visit there.

The young people enjoyed a dance at the Quini gun club hall at Quini Saturday night, and will again have an opportunity to attend one at Saathoff Bros.' hall at Vandenberg Saturday night.

Miss Minnie Leinweber was here from the upper Hondo Sunday visiting relatives.

Roland Burge returned to San Antonio Tuesday after a pleasant visit to relatives here.

Mrs. Hy. Hartmann is at home again after several weeks' stay with relatives at Yancey.

Miss Malinda Helmke returned to San Antonio today after a pleasant visit to home folks here.

S. A. LINDSEY.

HON. B. F. LOONEY.

Tyler, Texas, September—Mr. S. A. Lindsey, chairman of the sub-committee on Production, and Marketing of Farm Products, has been conducting an investigation into the high cost of marketing, on behalf of the Welfare Commission. There have been shipped out from this city this season 1,571 carloads of peaches to out-of-state points and the last end of the crop rotted on the ground for want of a market, although the consumer was anxious for the fruit.

A great deal of the Texas product goes to Colorado and Mr. Lindsey's investigation into market conditions at Colorado points shows peaches that the Texas producer gets sixty cents per bushel for packed and delivered f. o. b. Tyler at a cost of twenty-seven cents for picking, packing and hauling, sell to the Colorado consumer at $3.75 per bushel, and when the market drops to $3.42 per bushel the Texas farmer gets nothing for his peaches. The cost per bushel of marketing a bushel of peaches in Boulder, a common point with Denver, is distributed as follows: Picking, 2 cents; packing, 2 cents; package, 20 cents; hauling, 3 cents; freight, 40 cents; icing, 15 cents; handling after reaching Colorado, $2.60; total, $3.42. It follows that peaches which sell to the Colorado consumer for $3.75 brought the Texas producer 33 cents.

The cost of handling the peaches after they get to Colorado is more than four times the cost f. o. b. Tyler, and nearly five times the cost of the freight and icing charges added together.

This situation exists to a greater or lesser degree with all perishable farm products, and many that are not strictly perishable.

The high cost of marketing reflects its results upon Texas producers in that it lessens the consumption of the quantity and reduces prices below the cost of production.

An Appreciation.

Hondo, Texas.

Dear Mr. Davis:

I have your letter with $15.00 enclosure, the same covering donations of democrats as per your itemized statement therewith, for which I wish to thank you and each donor right heartily. This is an unmistakable evidence that the contributors fully appreciate the fact that our party is making an heroic effort to restore a genuine people's government, and that, under such circumstances, they must rely wholly upon the people for financial aid.

MOLESOFF is applied directly to the MOLE or WART, which entirely disappears in about six days, killing the germ and leaving the skin smooth and natural.

MOLESOFF is put up only in One Dollar bottles.

Each bottle is neatly packed in a plain case, accompanied by full directions, and contains enough remedy to remove eight or ten ordinary MOLES or WARTS. We sell MOLESOFF under a positive GUARANTEE if it fails to remove your MOLE or WART, we will promptly refund the dollar.
